

Transcript CPAP Commercial

“Millions of CPAP Machines, also known as “continuous positive airway pressure” machines, were recalled by Philips Respironics. They were recalled because the sound abatement foam used in the machines has been degrading and sending black debris or particles down people’s throats during use. These particles have been causing serious problems that range from heart and lung issues to different types of cancers.

If you have used or are currently using one of these machines, please give me a call.”